

Remembering the suppression of the “Phi Bun” Rebellion 120+1 years on

written by Adithep Chanthet | April 10, 2022

The tale of resistance surrounding Isaan’s Holy Man Rebellion in Ubon Ratchathani province, called “The Battle of Non Pho,” was passed down from generation to generation. Much folklore and many poems recalled the event of 121 years ago. Non Pho was a killing field, shelled by the government’s cannons, where over 400 people died. Local residents hope to build a local history museum in order to memorialize the tragic history of that day, one that has otherwise been fading.

Story and Photos by Adithet Janthet